Asia Pacific Journal of Environmental Law

Asia Pacific Journal of Environmental Law addresses the dynamic developments in environmental law in the Asia Pacific region. APJEL was established in 1996 and has a global reputation for publishing scholarly and current analysis of all aspects of Asia Pacific environmental law and policy. APJEL has been published by Edward Elgar since 2016 and joins Edward Elgar's growing list of international scholarly journals.

Cambridge International Law Journal

The Cambridge International Law Journal (CILJ) succeeds the Cambridge Journal of International and Comparative Law, which was established in 2011 at the University of Cambridge. CILJ is a double-blind peer-reviewed journal with a broad focus on international law. CILJ publishes in all areas of international law, including regional and transnational legal regime, such as European Union law. CILJ provides a platform for both young and well-established academics to publish outstanding research on cutting-edge, highly topical international law issues alongside (and in dialogue with) each other.

Cape Town Convention Journal

Cape Town Convention Journal is an international review of the law and practice arising from the Cape Town Convention on International Interests in Mobile Equipment. The Journal seeks to assist scholars, practicing's lawyers, judges and other government officials, and industry by providing information on and education about the treaty. Together with a comprehensive, digitized, and searchable repository of primary and secondary materials, the Journal is at the heart of these informational and education objectives. The Journal focuses on in-depth, qualitative analysis of important or complex topics.

Comparative Constitutional Studies - New!

Comparative Constitutional Studies (CCS) is an international journal for comparative public law scholarship, publishing three issues per year: two general issues, and one special issue on a specific topic or theme. 'Constitutional Studies' is conceived broadly to include constitutional and administrative law scholarship that advances the study of key issues and questions within the field through examining experiences and perspectives from a range of different jurisdictions.

Competition Law Journal

The Competition Law Journal provides scholars and practitioners in the field of competition and antitrust with a reliable source of analysis on the law and practice in the UK and EU. Its primary focus is on all aspects of UK competition law, from legal, economic and policy perspectives. It also addresses important developments in EU and international competition law. Combining authoritative editorial comment and articles by leading practitioners and academics, the Journal includes analysis of essential case law, CMA and European Commission decisions and relevant economic analysis.

Competition Law & Policy Debate

The Competition Law & Policy Debate (CLPD) focuses on major developments in Mergers, Cartels, Antitrust (Art.101/102 other than cartels) and State Aid. CLPD's focus is on dissecting, analysing and criticising the most recent and important legislation and case law, as well as on discussing questions faced by enforcers and practitioners but neglected in the existing literature. The articles are written by economists and lawyers, judges, officials at DG Competition, national authorities or international organisations, practitioners working in-house or in law firms as well as academics.

European Energy & Climate Journal

The European Energy & Climate Journal (EECJ) presents accessible coverage on the key legal and regulatory energy issues and developments throughout Europe to practitioners and academics in the field. It reports recent and forthcoming legislative and regulatory changes in the areas of energy policy, internal market, energy competition law, energy security, energy efficiency, renewable energy and climate change. It covers European Energy Union case law, legislation and its implementation by Member States, with contributions from leading practitioners, judges, EU energy authority officials and academics.

Interactive Entertainment Law Review

The aim of the Interactive Entertainment Law Review is to serve as a peer-reviewed hub for legal analysis of interactive entertainment, video games, virtual/augmented/mixed realities, social media, and all related and emergent forms of digital interactive entertainment. The journal is published twice a year with articles focusing on the legal changes, challenges, and controversies in this high profile and increasingly critical area of legal inquiry.

Journal of Human Rights and the Environment

The relationship between human rights and the environment is a fascinating, uneasy, and increasingly urgent one. The Journal of Human Rights and the Environment provides a strategic academic forum in which an extended interdisciplinary and multilayered conversation can take place concerning the challenges located at the interface of these two centrally important fields. This journal releases two issues a year.

Journal of Global Health Law- New!

The Journal of Global Health Law offers a new forum for exploring the contours of the field. Global health law is fragmented without a coherent body of standards. It includes instruments adopted under the framework of the WHO and other relevant international organizations, and a range of hard and soft law standards recognized in other branches of international law - such as human rights law, international humanitarian law, international environmental law, and international economic law.

Journal of Legal Philosophy

The Journal of Legal Philosophy (JLP) is an international journal publishing theoretical work relating to law and legal studies. It continues the Australasian Journal of Legal Philosophy, which has been published continuously for more than 30 years. The JLP aims to be inclusive, innovative, and socially engaged. Its main focus is on legal philosophy or jurisprudence, but it also publishes work in ethical, political, and social theory. It encompasses analytical jurisprudence, socio-legal theory, and critical and continental perspectives, as well as applied work in normative jurisprudence and theoretical studies of specific fields of law.

Military Law and the Law of War Review

Founded in 1962 under the auspices of the International Society for Military Law and the Law of War (the "Society"), the Military Law and the Law of War Review / Revue de Droit Militaire et de Droit de la Guerre (the "Review") ranks among the oldest and most respected publications at the international level in the area of military/security law and the law of armed conflict. The Review prides itself on serving as a leading forum for debate among legal scholars and practitioners. It features original articles, case notes, commentaries on the latest legal developments, and book reviews.

Queen Mary Journal of Intellectual Property

As an extension of the Queen Mary Intellectual Property Research Institute's reputation as one of the foremost centers for intellectual property research and education, Queen Mary Journal of Intellectual Property has become an important forum for quality scholarship in this field, publishing full-length articles as well as analysis pieces and case reports.

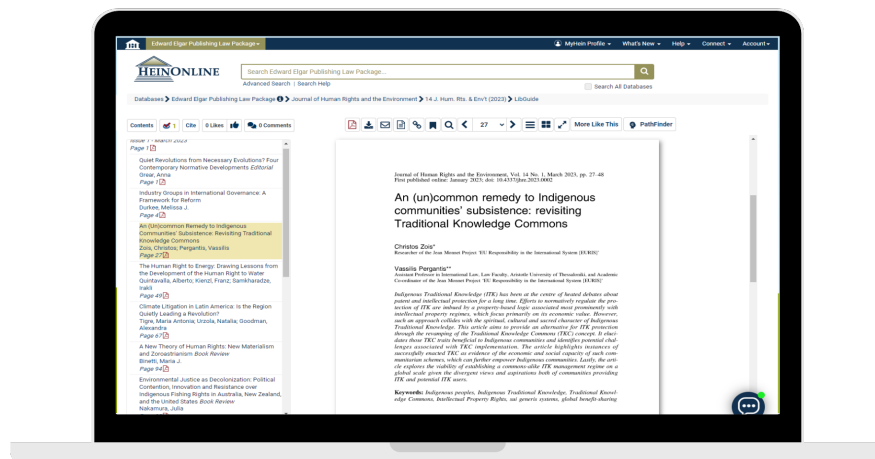

Rewable Energy Law and Policy Review

The Renewable Energy Law and Policy Review reports on the dynamic and quickly changing developments taking place in Europe and around the world in the renewable energy sector, from bio-energy, solar and wind power to developing technologies like fuel cells and nuclear fusion. Each issue reports on trends and critical issues from the European Union and its active Member States, cutting-edge experience from North America, Australia, and Japan, as well as opportunities and challenges in emerging markets and various corners of the developing world. This journal has ceased publication as of 2023.

Renmin Chinese Law Review

Renmin Chinese Law Review is a series of annual volumes on contemporary Chinese law, which brings together the work of recognized scholars from China, offering a window on current legal research in the country. The journal addresses topics such as the law theory of public interest, as well as issues pertaining to the Chinese legal system's implementation of WTO laws. All of the contributions provide useful insights for those wishing to explore China's increasing influence in international law and politics as well as China's recent legal reforms
