ALI-ABA has a history of outreach to underrepresented groups in the legal community and is firmly committed to providing a welcoming environment and ensuring that the attorneys who speak and write for our organization represent the increasing diversity of our profession. We welcome suggestions for new speakers and authors to support the full participation of all of the talent in our profession.

Providing Information To Beneficiaries (With Sample Forms)

Robert Whitman

This outline suggests "best practice" procedures in three areas of estate administration: providing information and services to beneficiaries, receipts and releases; and fiduciary accounting. These suggestions will help practitioners and trust administrators who wish to reduce the amount of litigation and bad feelings between beneficiaries and fiduciaries.

Updated from the ALI-ABA Course of Study Representing Estate and Trust Beneficiaries and Fiduciaries, July 17-18, 2008.

Charitable Lead Trusts

Michael V. Bourland, Jeffrey N. Myers, and Deren L. Worrell

CLTs are generally used by wealthy individuals with sufficient current assets to provide current benefits to charity with later return to the donor or donor's noncharitable beneficiaries, normally family members.

Updated from the ALI-ABA Course of Study Estate Planning for the Family Business Owner, July 9-11, 2008.

Estates With Charities As Beneficiaries: How Do We Protect Their Interests?

Lawrence P. Katzenstein

Not only are the qualification rules for post-mortem income tax charitable deductions different from the qualification rules for an estate deduction, but the income tax rules for deductibility of income paid to charity during administration are different from the rules for deductibility of distributions to non-charitable beneficiaries. This outline will highlight the kinds of questions that charitable beneficiaries of estates should be asking—or that we should be asking for them.

Updated from the ALI-ABA Course of Study, Charitable Giving Techniques, 5-6, 2008.
