History of Current Index to Legal Periodicals
Current Index to Legal Periodicals began in the 1930s as an internal publication for faculty at the University of Washington School of Law Marian Gould Gallagher Law Library.

It covered 3-4 journals, was categorized under fewer than 10 subject headings, and was released every week or two as journals came in.

Legal scholarship began to expand in the 1940s, making it more difficult for practitioners and scholars to track down the most recent articles pertaining to their specialization in the field.

By 1958 the value of CILP was recognized in the greater law library community, and annual subscriptions were sold for just $4.00. A decade later, it was a regular publication relied on heavily by law librarians, professors, lawyers, and other legal scholars.
History of CILP

• Beginning with the April 2, 1982 issue, CILP was published in a new computerized printing format, making the product much easier to use. To continuously improve its ease of access, CILP transitioned into floppy disk and then email distribution, as well.

• In 1996, many schools were receiving CILP in a weekly email message or downloadable file. That year, SmartCILP was born, the same weekly index tailored to include subscribers’ chosen subjects.

• Today CILP has evolved into a current awareness tool for legal scholars.
Hein’s Acquisition of CILP
William S. Hein & Co., Inc. and HeinOnline are proud to continue the publication of this crucial resource for legal scholars. Under Hein’s direction, the function and purpose of CILP will remain exactly the same—to provide a weekly, subject-categorized index of the most recent law journal issues.

Benefits of the Hein’s acquisition:

- Unlimited SmartCILP profiles
- Complete access to the digital archive dating back to 1936
- Enhanced efficiencies resulting in timely indexing of current issues
- Access to HeinOnline’s Law Library Journal of 2,800+ periodicals
- SmartCILP delivered to your inbox weekly
- Access to Hein’s customer service and support

How to Access CILP
How to Access CILP

Non-subscribers can access CILP directly through the Law Journal Library. However, without a subscription, there is a 4-year embargo on the title. Users can still access the archive past the 4-year mark.
Subscribers can access the title, without an embargo, from the Law Journal Library. They can also access the database directly from the Welcome Page.
From within the database, users can easily download multiple formats of the weekly issues.

SmartCILP

All About SmartCILP

- SmartCILP is an essential current awareness tool for legal scholars, providing tailored alerts delivered via email as a personalized supplement to the weekly CILP issue.

- All SmartCILP notifications include full-text linking to HeinOnline’s Law Journal Library.

- Institutions and organizations are provided with the ability to provide unlimited SmartCILP profiles.

All existing profiles that were managed from the University of Washington’s system are now available within HeinOnline. They do not need to be recreated.
How to Create a SmartCILP Notification

If you have never created a SmartCILP profile, you can simply click the Create SmartCILP User tab from within the CILP database.

Next, enter your institutional email address into the box and select “Create/Update.”
Users will be redirected to a form where they can manage what they will receive in the weekly SmartCILP notification. All CILP content has been categorized into 104 subjects. Many of those subjects, in turn, have been organized under fifteen topics (or groups) that allow users to subscribe to multiple subjects and subject-specific journals at once.

Enter your name and select as many Topics, Subjects, or Journals as desired.
How to Manage an Existing SmartCILP Profile

Users who have created a SmartCILP profile at any point in time have the ability to manage their SmartCILP notifications through MyHein. To access this feature, users must be signed in to their MyHein account created under the same email address as their SmartCILP profile.

Access the edit portal from within your MyHein account or from anywhere in HeinOnline.
Either method will direct you to your own SmartCILP Profile portal—the same form where you originally entered the topics, subjects, or journals that you wished to be notified about in the weekly SmartCILP notification.

You will see your previous selections checked by default.

To edit your selections, simply check or uncheck the desired topics, subjects, or journals and select “Create/Update.”

You will then be notified that you have successfully updated your SmartCILP notifications.
