

U.S. Federal Legislative History Library

The richest collection of compiled federal legislative histories available.

HeinOnline's U.S. Federal Legislative History Library contains nearly 2,500 titles from a number of sources, including the Government Printing Office, Arnold and Porter, Covington and Burling, Kirkland and Ellis, and more. William S. Hein & Co., Inc. also has contracted with legal experts to compile and publish legislative histories on major public laws in-house.

These compilations are composed of the text of the final public law, House and Senate bill variations, Congressional hearings, House and Senate reports, and more. Research legislative intent behind major public laws and follow the progression of a bill from its introduction to its passage. Gain insight and clarification into ambiguous statutory language with this valuable tool. All titles are indexed to the document level and are fully searchable; all material available in HeinOnline is linked and accessible from this database. In addition to legislative history content, this library includes the database version of the award-winning Sources of Compiled Legislative Histories.

Locating a Compiled Legislative History

Browse the database by publication title, popular name, or public law number.

Each title displays the public law number, source, and a more information link which contains public law information, bill references, and related materials.

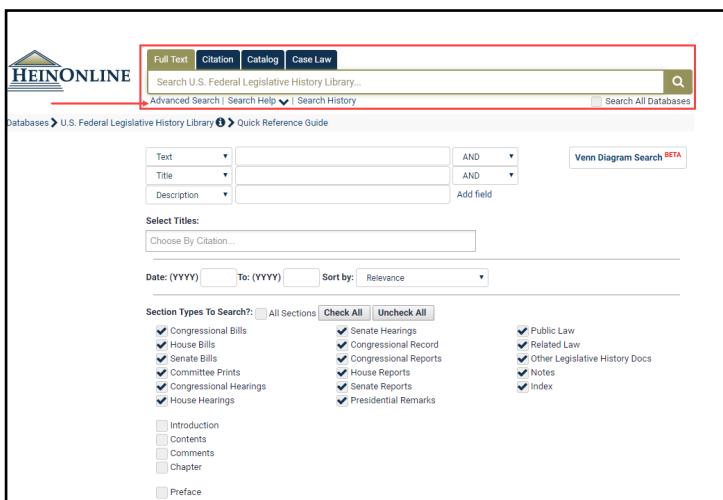

Click the title of any document to access the full text of the document within the U.S. Federal Legislative History Library or corresponding subject-specific database.

NOTE: Documents with multiple volumes will display a search bar located above the cumulative contents to enable users to easily search the contents of any compiled legislative history.

Click the publication title to enter the contents of the legislative history. Search within a title and expand each volume's contents to view a list of documents included in the compilation.

Searching in the Database

All documents are fully searchable. Use the main search bar at the top of the page to search for terms across the database.

To perform a more specific search, use the Advanced Search link located beneath the search bar. This option offers up to six metadata fields in which to search, along with date parameters to enable users to limit results to a selected time frame. Users can also choose the method in which to sort search results from the Advanced Search area.

NOTE: Click the Search Help link, located next to the Advanced Search link, for a list of commonly used syntax and search examples.

Sources of Compiled Legislative Histories

The Sources of Compiled Legislative Histories database is derived from the loose-leaf publication Sources of Compiled Legislative Histories: A Bibliography of Government Documents, Periodical Articles, and Books originally created and edited by the late law librarian Nancy P. Johnson, and now updated by professional law librarians Ron Wheeler and Jenna Fegreus.

Use the database version of Sources of Compiled Legislative Histories to locate available material on a specific public law. This database can also be either searched or browsed by Congress or by a list of public laws. The list of public laws is organized into an A-Z index by popular name. Locate the desired public law, and then click the title of the Act to view the Act's entry.
