HEIN OF THE CENTURY.

Overview

Over the past 12 months, we've been hard at work to not only create new databases, but to also update our existing databases and improve upon many features in HeinOnline. Below are some of the major updates we'll review:

- Major database enhancements
- Updates to databases tools
- New databases tools
- New and updates searching resources

Database Enhancements

Cataloging Legal Literature, Fifth Edition

This newly revised edition addresses the needs of large and small law libraries alike, particularly those who wish to follow national cataloging standards, including the Library of Congress and the Program for Cooperative Cataloging.

Cataloging Legal Literature, 5th edition (CLL5) addresses RDA instructions and terminology as found in both the current RDA Toolkit and its Beta Site.

CLL5 is not a general self-help book for the beginning cataloger. The goal is to help the law cataloger deal with the ambiguities of 21st century cataloging.

Throughout the manual, illustrations of descriptive or subject cataloging and MARC tags are offered. The examples of subject cataloging are based on guidelines published in the Library of Congress' Subject Cataloging Manual (SCM) and identifying Library of Congress practices for assigning subject headings.

Cataloging Legal Literature, Fifth Edition

In addition to print, CLL5 is available in digital format as a searchable resource.

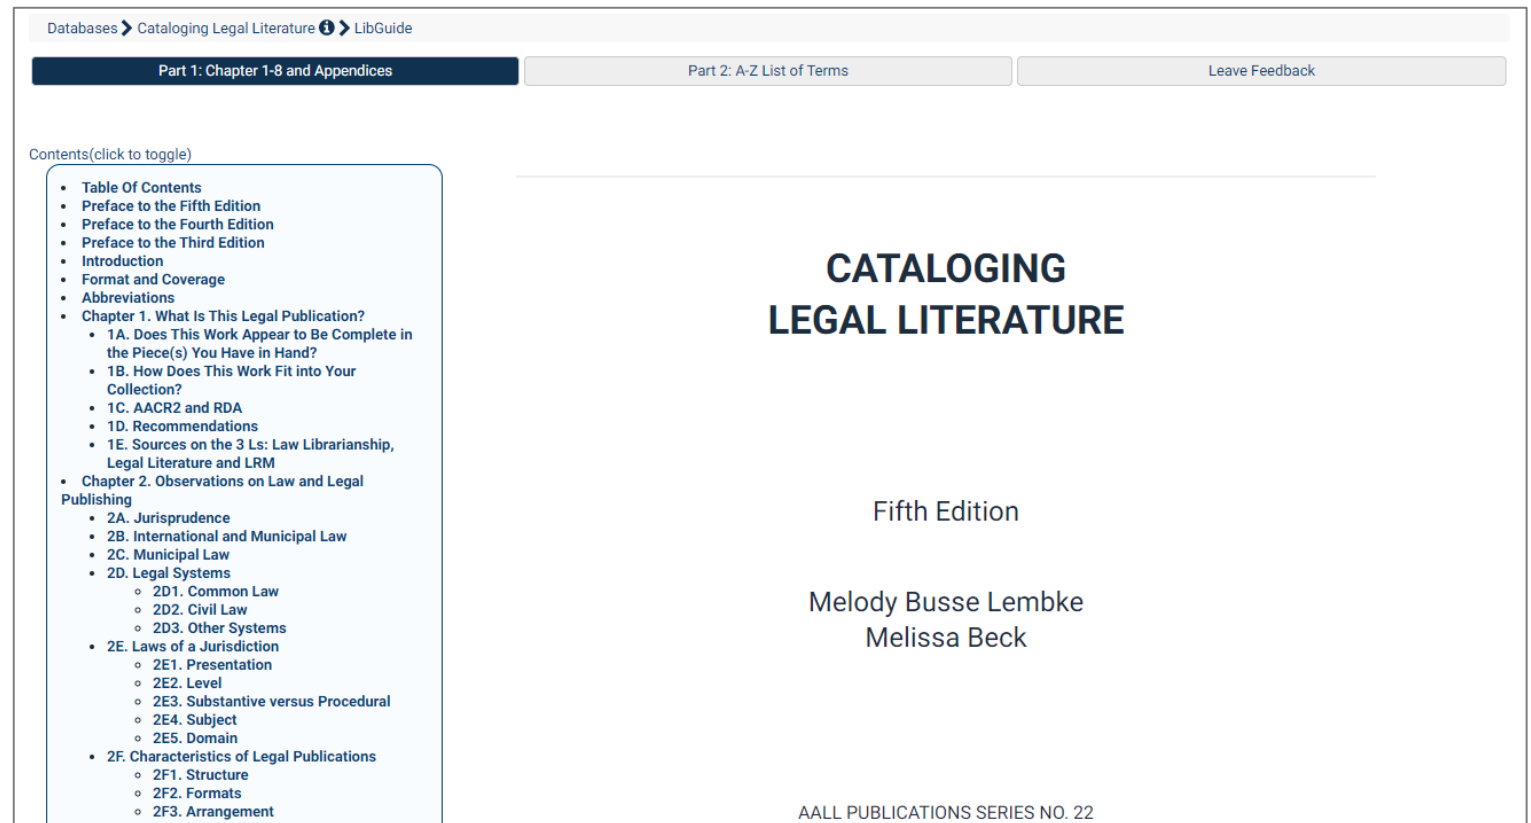

Part 1 includes hyperlinks to:

- Cataloging resources
- Extensive MARC examples
- Charts

Part 2 of CLL5 contains an alphabetical listing of more than 220 legal terms and publication formats.

These terms will link users to:

- RDA instructions
- Subject practice
- Classification information
- Cataloging examples

Introduction to HeinOnline's Criminal Justice & Criminology

Most of us in the United States have some superficial understanding of our criminal justice system thanks to popular culture. America reveres its outlaws almost as much as it does its lawmen, and counts among its immortals Wyatt Earp, Al Capone, Bonnie and Clyde, and Elliot Ness. While the old adage may suggest that crime doesn't pay, it certainly is profitable. Of the top ten longest-running scripted U.S. primetime television series of all time, five are centered around crime and the dispensing of justice (Law & Order: Special Victims Unit, Gunsmoke, Law & Order, NCIS, and CSI: Crime Scene Investigation). Our society is fascinated, almost obsessed, with crime.

The easy narratives of television, however, do not always play out in the courtroom, and while a viewer might think an episode of Cops captures the reality of the criminal justice system, it only shows a small portion of the entire apparatus. Criminal justice refers to the system by which justice is dispensed onto those who have committed a crime. It includes the crime a defendant allegedly committed, the law enforcement officers who arrested him, the court system that prosecutes and defends him, and how the defendant is punished if he is convicted. Throughout history the basic elements of the criminal justice system have existed in some form or another, although the mechanisms by which they are expressed have changed through the centuries. For example, while exile and branding have fallen out as popular (and acceptable) methods of punishment for criminals, imprisonment and parole have risen up to take their place. Codification of laws and their respective punishments have existed back to the ancient Code of Hammurabi, but our conception of modern policing traces its origin London's Metropolitan Police Force, created by Sir Robert Peel in 1829.

Criminology, on the other hand, is the study of criminal behavior on both an individual and societal level. It intersects with the criminal justice system by studying, for example, the effectiveness of certain types of punishment or the causation of crime and the

Law Journal Library

The Law Journal Library now contains more than 2,800 journals!

The ability to refine search results by metadata facets has enhanced journal research

New Availability search facet improves journal research further, allowing users to limit results by full-text or indexing

The screenshot displays the Law Journal Library search results page. On the left, a 'Refine Your Search' sidebar lists various metadata facets: Date, Section Type, Topic, Location, Person, Organization, Title, Edit Type, Availability, Language, Country Published, and State Published. The main search results area shows 269,316 results for the query 'civil rights'. The results are sorted by Relevance. A 'See Also' section indicates 4,553 results from the Index to Foreign Legal Periodicals. Below the search bar, there are buttons for 'Check All', 'Uncheck All', a dropdown menu for 'Please select an option', and a 'Save/Email' button. The first result is 'Civil Rights [article]', which is a survey from the Texas Tech Law Review, Vol. 26, Issue 2 (1995), pp. 447-516, by James C. Harrington. It is cited 4 times. The article's topics are Civil Rights, Cruel and Unusual Punishment, Punishment, Constitutional Law, and Due Process. A 'Turn to page' box shows a table of contents for the article, with 'CIVIL RIGHTS' starting on page 448 II. and 'OVERVIEW OF CIVIL RIGHTS DECISIONS' starting on page 449 A. The second result is 'Civil Rights & (and) Civil Rights Acts [notes]'. The bottom of the page shows a link to 'All Matching Text Pages (40)'.
